

LUCKY

Reading Is Everywhere!

- Ask your students to help you write a list of all the places in which we read. Use the poster to start your list.
- See if you can add up all the times we read in a day. This will show your students how important the skill is.
- Ask your students to bring in, if possible, examples of things they have had to read on the weekend. If they can't bring them in, ask them to make a list.
- Homework project:
Ask your students to read a story and present a book report in the form of a letter to their teacher.
